

Abba Eban: An Autobiography by Paul Mckendrick: A Comprehensive Review

Abba Eban, the former Israeli Foreign Minister and United Nations Ambassador, was a towering figure in international diplomacy. His autobiography, "An Autobiography," is a fascinating and insightful account of his life and career.

Early Life and Education

Abba Eban: An Autobiography by Paul McKendrick

★★★★☆ 4.9 out of 5

Language : English
File size : 2907 KB
Text-to-Speech : Enabled
Screen Reader : Supported
Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
Word Wise : Enabled
Print length : 628 pages

Lending

: Enabled

Abba Eban was born Aubrey Solomon Eban on February 2, 1918, in Cape Town, South Africa. His father was a Lithuanian-born rabbi, and his mother was a Russian-born immigrant. Eban's family moved to England when he was two years old. He attended St. Paul's School in London and then went on to study Oriental languages at Cambridge University, where he graduated with honors.

Diplomatic Career

After graduating from Cambridge, Eban joined the British Foreign Service. He served in a variety of diplomatic posts, including as the British representative to the United Nations. In 1948, he was appointed Israel's first ambassador to the United Nations. He served in this role for 11 years, during which time he played a key role in shaping Israel's foreign policy and representing Israel on the world stage.

Minister of Foreign Affairs

In 1959, Eban was appointed Israel's Minister of Foreign Affairs. He served in this role for 10 years, during which time he helped to negotiate a number of key agreements, including the 1967 ceasefire agreement that ended the Six-Day War. Eban was also a leading advocate for Israel's security and its right to exist.

United Nations Ambassador

In 1974, Eban was appointed Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations for a second time. He served in this role for six years, during which time he continued to advocate for Israel's security and its right to exist. Eban was also a leading critic of the Arab-Israeli conflict and the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

Retirement and Legacy

Eban retired from public life in 1980. He continued to write and speak on international affairs, and he also served as a professor at Columbia University. Eban died in Washington, D.C., on November 17, 2002, at the age of 84.

Abba Eban was a brilliant diplomat and a passionate advocate for Israel. His autobiography is a fascinating and insightful account of his life and career, and it offers valuable insights into the history of Israel and the Middle East.

Here are some additional details about Abba Eban and his autobiography:

- Eban was a gifted linguist who spoke 10 languages.
- He was a close friend of David Ben-Gurion, the first Prime Minister of Israel.
- Eban was a strong supporter of the United States and its role in the Middle East.
- He was a critic of the Soviet Union and its support for the Arab states.
- Eban was a Nobel Peace Prize nominee in 1972.
- His autobiography, "An Autobiography," was published in 1988.

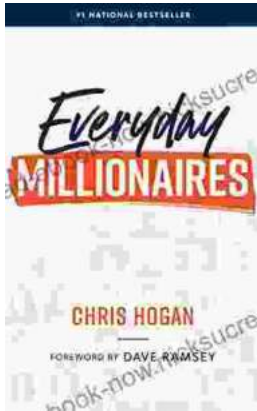

Abba Eban: An Autobiography by Paul McKendrick

★★★★☆ 4.9 out of 5

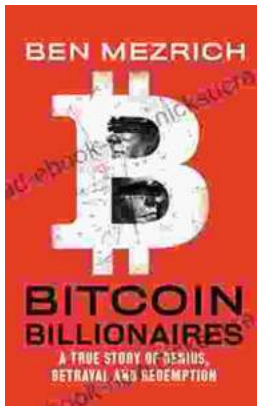

Language : English
File size : 2907 KB
Text-to-Speech : Enabled
Screen Reader : Supported
Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
Word Wise : Enabled
Print length : 628 pages
Lending : Enabled

Chris Hogan: The Everyday Millionaire Who Shares His Secrets to Financial Success

Chris Hogan is an Everyday Millionaire who shares his secrets to financial success. He is the author of the bestselling book "Everyday Millionaires," which has sold over 1...

The True Story of Genius, Betrayal, and Redemption

In the annals of science, there are countless stories of brilliant minds whose work has changed the world. But there are also stories of...