Elvis's first serious girlfriend was Dixie Locke. They met in high school, and they dated for two years. Elvis was reportedly very much in love with Dixie, and he even proposed to her. However, Dixie's parents did not approve of Elvis, and they eventually broke up.

Elvis's Marriage to Priscilla Presley

In 1967, Elvis married Priscilla Beaulieu. Priscilla was a young actress and model who was just 14 years old when she met Elvis. They had one child together, Lisa Marie Presley. However, their marriage was tumultuous, and they divorced in 1973.

Elvis's Relationship with Ann-Margret

One of Elvis's most famous relationships was with actress Ann-Margret. They met in 1964, and they quickly became romantically involved. Their relationship was passionate and intense, but it was also very public. The media constantly scrutinized their every move, and this eventually put a strain on their relationship. They broke up in 1967.

Elvis's Relationship with Linda Thompson

After his divorce from Priscilla, Elvis began dating actress Linda Thompson. They were together for four years, and they were reportedly very happy. However, their relationship ended in 1976, reportedly due to Elvis's drug use and infidelity.

Elvis's Relationship with Ginger Alden

Elvis's last girlfriend was Ginger Alden. They met in 1976, and they were together until Elvis's death in 1977. Ginger was reportedly very devoted to Elvis, and she was with him when he died. She has said that she believes that Elvis loved her more than anyone else.

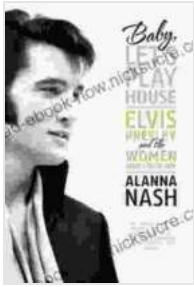

Elvis Presley was a complex and contradictory figure. He was a talented musician and a charismatic performer, but he was also a flawed human being. His relationships with women were often tumultuous and passionate, but they were also full of love and heartbreak. Elvis's story is a reminder that even the most famous and successful people are not immune to the complexities of love.
