

Lone Stars Joe and Betty Moore: A Legacy of Texas Art

Joe and Betty Moore are two of the most influential figures in Texas art. Their collection of over 1,000 works of art by Texas artists is now on display at the San Antonio Museum of Art. The Moores' collection is a testament to their love of Texas and its culture. It is also a testament to their belief in the power of art to inspire and educate.

The Moores' Collection

The Moores' collection includes works by some of the most famous Texas artists, such as Frederic Remington, Charles Russell, and Georgia O'Keeffe. However, the collection also includes works by lesser-known artists, such as John Biggers, Dorothy Hood, and Jerry Bywaters. The Moores were not afraid to collect art that was challenging or controversial. They believed that all art had value, regardless of its style or subject matter.

The Moores' collection is not just a collection of paintings and sculptures. It also includes works of photography, folk art, and furniture. The Moores believed that all forms of art were valid and that they could all contribute to our understanding of the human experience.

The San Antonio Museum of Art

The San Antonio Museum of Art is the perfect home for the Moores' collection. The museum is dedicated to collecting and exhibiting art from Texas and the American West. The Moores' collection is a major addition to the museum's holdings, and it will help to ensure that the museum remains a leading center for the study of Texas art.

The Moores' Legacy

Joe and Betty Moore were more than just art collectors. They were also passionate advocates for the arts in Texas. They helped to found the Texas Cultural Trust, and they donated millions of dollars to arts organizations across the state. The Moores' legacy will continue to inspire Texans for generations to come.

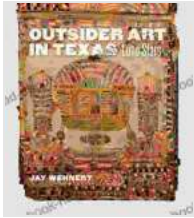

Joe and Betty Moore were true Lone Stars. They loved Texas and its culture, and they dedicated their lives to supporting the arts in their home state. Their collection of Texas art is a testament to their love of art and their belief in the power of art to inspire and educate.
