

Rebel Homemaker: Food, Family, and Life on Our Own Terms

Who We Are

We are a family of six living on a small homestead in rural Missouri. We believe that everyone has the potential to live a more intentional, self-sufficient, and sustainable life. We are passionate about sharing our knowledge and experience with others to help them make the most of their own homesteading journey.

What We Do

We blog about a wide range of homesteading topics, including gardening, cooking, canning, preserving, raising animals, DIY projects, and homeschooling. We also offer online courses and workshops to teach others the skills they need to live a more sustainable life.

Why We Do It

We believe that the traditional model of homemaking is broken. It is no longer sustainable for families to rely on a single income, and it is increasingly difficult to find affordable, healthy food. We are working to create a new model of homemaking that is more flexible, affordable, and sustainable.

We believe that everyone has the potential to create a home and a life that they love. We hope that our blog and resources will inspire you to take control of your life and make the changes you need to create a more fulfilling and sustainable future for yourself and your family.

Our Values

* Intentionality: We believe in living our lives with purpose and intention. We make conscious choices about how we spend our time, money, and energy. * Self-sufficiency: We believe in being able to provide for ourselves as much as possible. We grow our own food, raise our own animals, and make our own clothes. * Sustainability: We believe in living in a way that is sustainable for both our planet and our future generations. We use renewable energy sources, recycle and compost, and reduce our waste. * Family: We believe that family is the most important thing in life. We homeschool our children and make time for each other every day.

Our Story

We started our homesteading journey in 2015 when we moved to a small farm in rural Missouri. We had no experience with farming or homesteading, but we were eager to learn. We started by planting a small garden and raising a few chickens. Over the years, we have gradually expanded our homestead to include a large garden, an orchard, a flock of chickens, a herd of goats, and a pig.

We have learned a lot about homesteading through trial and error. We have made mistakes, but we have also had a lot of success. We are now confident in our ability to provide for ourselves and our family.

We are grateful for the opportunity to live a more intentional, self-sufficient, and sustainable life. We hope that our blog and resources will inspire others to do the same.

Join the Movement

We are excited to connect with other families who are interested in living a more intentional, self-sufficient, and sustainable life. We invite you to join our online community on Facebook, Instagram, and Pinterest.

We also offer a free email newsletter with exclusive content, recipes, and tips. Sign up for our newsletter today and start your homesteading journey!
